FROM THE EDITOR!
 "UNSPOKEN THOUGHTS"

This week was Memorial Day. It marks a place in time, space and eternity. We sometimes get a little out of touch with the things and efforts that have made our nation one of the greatest in the history of the world. We were never indended to be just another country in the mix of countries that you really have to look close to see if there is really a distiction or difference. We have set a standard in the world that will never be matched again. We have had our ups and downs. We sometimes can't see the forrest for the trees. We have accomplished more in the short history of our nation than any other nation in history. We didn't set out to conquer the world, we set out to show that with respect and effort everyone can have a piece of the American Dream! We have a faction that wants this country and it's citizens to stand in line, do as their told and don't make waves. This group is out to destroy our values and morals. This group wants us to give up our pride and be just another number on a computer print out.

The elections that are coming up between now and November are going to decide if we still are the Land of the Free and the Home of the Brave. These words have never held more truth than this moment in time. If you value the freedom that others have died to protect, don't let evil corrupted politicians pressure you into silence. We the people decide our fate. The politicians have forgotten that they are our servants.

Poet Laurel Stamps

My Mother wrote these poems before she passed in 2013 and now I'm sharing them with you, Enjoy!

The Little Voice

The little voice within me, I don't even know it's name
 But it's purpose seems to be, To judge and cause me pain

The little voice within me that tells me when I do, things that are right and proper, things both wrong and taboo

It will whisper words of comfort when I'm feeling down and out

When I'm really doing bad things it gets angry and it shouts

It doesn't talk to others or tattle about my sins
 It would rather stay inside me and really do me in

It never seems as delighted when I'm doing all things right

But let me do a single wrong and it will keep me up all night

L. C. Stamps February 2008
