From the Editor

"Side Note!"

Over the weekend there was a shooting at the Cosco in Corona, Ca. The shooting involved an off duty L.A.P.D. officer who shot an unarmed mentally deficient man to death and also shot the man's mother and father. Some of the reports are the officer and the deceased individual were having an argument and it turned violent. Now here is another twist. Off duty cop from L.A.P.D. has no jurisdiction in Corona, or Riverside County. Secondly the deceased individual has been reported to be non speaking. Now, with all that said, why in the world did the officer turn the gun on the mother and father. I realize that the officer was holding his child in his arms at the point the altercation began, but for the sake of your child did you really feel that you could justify the use of deadly force? I think that this issue needs to have a closer look and also reconsider whether or not an off duty officer should be allowed to carry a firearm in a town or county where he has not jurisdiction at all. He has no more right to carry that weapon than a private citizen. If every day Joe has to leave his gun at home because he poses a threat that the same rule should apply to the L.A.P.D. or any other officer that is outside his jurisdiction. The sadness that is going to hit the deceased's family and that of the off duty officer has not even come close to reaching a peak. If I had been there and saw a man draw a gun without identifying that he was law enforcement, I would have taken any thing that was close at hand and had a go at him myself. The fact that he had a child in his arms means nothing. It could have been a case where the perp with the gun was abducting a child from grand parents and an uncle. There are many ways this could have played out. A man with limited mental capacity is dead and a cop pulled the trigger.

Poet Laurel Stamps

Hi, everyone, Its Denise Groomer and I'm back with another Poem that my Mother wrote in 2012 titled

"PROMISES"

The promise made by rainbows, To say the storm has passed
The promise of Spring blossoms, to say Winters gone at last
The promise of morning Sunrise to say the long dark night is through
The promise of forgiveness when we've gone astray
The promise of guidance, when we've lost our way
Our lives may be so saddened, full of chaos and of stress
But the fulfillment of such promises says we are truly Blessed

FROM THE EDITOR!
"UNSPOKEN THOUGHTS"

Hello, I hope that everyone had a wonderful Father's Day! The weather was really nice and the breeze kept it from getting to hot. Now down to the facts at hand. I have tried to have an open mind on the subject of who broke the law when it comes to Russia, lies, warrent's, F.I.S.A. courts and everything that the system has used to beat up citizens that were once honored and for many decades served our country putting life and limb on the line. When you think about it, not many politicians have a D.D.214 from military service. Yet, there are many individuals in our nation that have not served and that is also alright. When we allow the system to attack a citizen with out any proof of a crime being committed, that is where the line should be drawn. Flynn got caught up in the Russian Hoax. He was convicted of not telling the same word for word story to the bottom feeders at the top of the F.B.I.. He never broke a law in the true sense of the word. You have people like Comey who bragged about breaking the law and releasing classified documents to get the investigation started against Trump. Mueller who was turned down to run the F.B.I. was appointed the next day to investigate Donald Trump. After millions of dollars there was not a damn thing to show the nation as to what laws were broken. It was a talk around by Mueller who is nothing more than James Comey's under the table bitch if you catch my insult. All the dirt that points to Obama and Hillary Clinton and you still have individuals on the left that are still screaming about how Trump is destroying the nation. Yet, here is a good question for all the Trump haters! Since you hate Trump so bad, you are giving all the profits that you made on the stock market to a charity or other deserving group? Right? Or, are you another hypocrite like the Pelosi?
