FROM THE EDITOR!
"UNSPOKEN THOUGHTS"

Sunday April 5th is Easter. I hope that everyone has a safe weekend/holiday. We have enough sad news during our average work week!

Indiana has caused quite a buzz with the new law that was signed by their Governor. I have to laugh, everyone who is up in arms about it don't really realize how important it is to everyone in the Nation. Many other states have similar laws in place, and you don't hear much about it. I guess their Governor must have stepped on some toes! I firmly believe in this law because without it everyone's rights, including the people protesting, are protected. Common sense and good morals and value of life in general is what we should focus on. I don't have the right to destroy your property, injure you or in other ways diminish your life and happiness. Who you sleep with is indeed your business. Where I draw the line is simple. If I don't think that your way of life is for me or my family or children, I have the right to tell you to stay the hell away from us. I have the right to tell you not to trespass on my property. If I own a business and feel that what you want me to provide in product or service and I find it to be personally offensive. So be it. You with all your degenerate behavior should also respect that I have rights. More and more we are traveling down the same path that the Roman Empire took to it's downfall. Under Caligula, who was said to be doing men, women and children, the society of the day deemed it as normal behavior. They had the Coliseum to keep the public entertained. They did not worry about morals, because the law said that this behavior was acceptable. How did that work for them. We are letting murderers and child molesters live in our neighborhoods because a bunch of degenerate Old Farts on the Supreme Court say we don't have the right to violate the offenders rights!
