"True Facts"

By Fred Lundgren
CEO of KCAA Radio

Should Children Be Taught To Trust The Police In All Circumstances?

Recently, I received an promotional email from the Rosenberg, Texas Police Department. The caption on the image of the young officer threw my brain into overdrive. The officer was asking parents to teach their children to trust the police, suggesting that parents should instruct children to run to police if they are fearful or feel threatened. Well, fair enough... but Mr. policeman, would you help us a little by changing your appearance so you don't look so scary? You can start by demilitarizing your uniform, your accessories and your conduct. You can stop shaving your head to look like a member of an American white supremacist group. YOU CAN STOP TAKING STEROIDS AND BUYING INTO THE STEREOTYPE THAT YOU NEED TO WIN A BODY BUILDING CONTEST TO BE A COP. Regardless of what you believe about the safety of these substances, they impair your judgement by making you too aggressive. Next, get rid of your tattoos or at least cover them. If you choose to do neither, choose a different line of work. Then, urge that all military surplus gear that was given to your city and county be destroyed and recycled and the revenue be given to a public charity in your community. If the local government won't do it, start a local campaign with fellow officers to beat these unnecessary swords into plowshares. You don't need them to do your job and an increasing number of citizens feel threatened when you employ them. Get rid of them and reject them in the future. Your community will appreciate it. Stop meeting arbitrary quotas. We know it happens so don't pretend otherwise. Stop acting like tax collectors for your municipality. Refuse to be treated as tax collectors. If the culture of your city and police organization pressures you into quotas, be honorable and expose it. The word "police" should be a noun as often as possible and only as a verb when absolutely necessary. This article is instructive. Live in the community that hires you and send your children to public school in your community. If you live and spend your money in a "safer" or "better" city and pay for a private school, it's clear that you have a prejudice against the community you are hired to protect and serve. This separation will alienate you from the community you patrol and you will not be respected as a person who wants to improve the community for the right reasons. Stop targeting minorities. Targeting creates resentment and anger in whole communities. In a recent Reuters poll, Only 30 percent of African-Americans and 43 percent of adults under the age of 30 of all races say they "trust the police to be fair and just". Obviously, due to profiling and targeting, young minorities are more likely to have negative interactions with the police. Your system needs reform. More aggressive tactics will only make it worse at a time when a majority of Americans in those two demographics believe that police behavior is already unfair and unjust. These problems won't resolve themselves and they will not be changed by PR campaigns. A PSA asking parents to teach children to trust the police does nothing to change the culture of a policing system that has become militaristic. Something is terribly wrong in America when a growing number of minorities fear the police more than criminals in their communities. The militarization of police started in the 1960s with the "SWAT" teams, the "Special Weapons and Tactics" Teams and escalated with the so called war against drugs. A long list of public policy changes followed like the 1981 passage of The Military Cooperation with Civilian Law Enforcement Agencies Act that allows the military to cooperate with civilian law enforcement. Then came the abuse of asset forfeiture laws when police became beneficiaries of confiscations. Then, Homeland Security came along to allow all types of authority figures to impede our freedom in the name of security. Then a wrong headed war ended that released hundreds of thousands of young war torn veterans into the pool of potential police recruits. In my opinion, no one who has been through the hell of military combat in a foreign land should be eligible for a job in domestic law enforcement until they have been away from combat and out of the military for five years. If nothing changes with Homeland Security and the resulting militarization of police, I fear that America will slip even further down the slope toward an Orwellian fascist nightmare that will implode upon itself.

FROM THE EDITOR!
"UNSPOKEN THOUGHTS"

I saw Donald Trump on an interview. He was asked if he felt the war in the Middle East was justified? He answered simply, the war was not to keep us safer. The war was just a way to take Hussein and Gaddafi out of power. Binladin was only the excuse to go over there! He also stated that we are not safer, look at the mess we made in Iraq. Hussein and Gaddafi kept that area of the world in check! This is the actual truth that no one seems to want to admit! Under Bush we lost many of our civil rights in the name of security. We can be arrested without cause and held indefinetly without ever being charged with a crime under the "Patriot Act"! And the media every few years mentions that "1984" never happened. We are so watched today that it makes the novel look like a story for our children's bedtime. There are more and more stories about citizens being brutalized by police on a weekly basis. We are really in a hard spot when we rather see criminals in our neighborhood than law enforcement. The crap about gun control after the recent shooting in Oregon. What happened there is another whack job that the system did not have on their radar! It has nothing to do with actual fire arms. Clinton, "Socialist Skank" that she is, is looking to make the removal of guns from every law abiding citizen part of her bid for the White House! She made an appearance on S.N.L. and thinks that will win the hearts of the voters? I swear, we are in so deep that we will never see true freedom again unless we replace all the entitled trash that is now in public office. The S.O.P. has always given politicians a free pass. They are great at looking after their own needs first. We are just the A.T.M. that they can hit every time they want to spend more of our money on crap that does no one any good. Obama put his two cents worth in, so did McCain. McCain is not in touch with the public or everyday working man or woman. The mess that was left by Bush will still be haunting us 20 years from now. To the fools who think that we are safer now than before 9-11, I think you need to crawl in a hole and pull the dirt on top of yourself. Many times I have stated in my writing the prediction that was made by Kruschev to Kennedy. "The United States never need worry about being invaded, you will be over thrown from within without a shot being fired"! We are there!!!!
